Unit Co-ordinator: Carmelina Read

Description: SEBL focuses on assisting students to reflect on their experience in the light of their studies. It does not mean merely supervising work done. Rather, SEBL anticipates participation in a local church community with reflection and feedback in such a way that the student learns from her experience. The focus of SEBL is reflection, self evaluation and growth planning in relation to personal spiritual growth through college activities or ministry experience. MTW places particular emphasis on spiritual growth for women and training for ministry.

Outcomes: By the conclusion of the four semesters of SEBL – MTW, the student:

- has been deepened in their own intimacy with God;
- is committed to their future ministry effectiveness being fed by repeated times of personal spiritual renewal;
- has developed their philosophy of ministry so that its broad outline has begun to take shape;
- has engaged in regular reflection on their own personhood and vocation in the light of the truths, skills and commitments gained through the course; and
- has experienced a model of growth through personal accountability, mentoring, reading and reflection, and through this, the student has been supported and equipped to minister to others.

Assessment: SEBL is assessed as satisfactory/unsatisfactory on the basis of completion of all components.

Attendance and participation in lectures and seminars will be documented each semester.

Self Assessment Reports:

You will be required to complete self-assessment in the form of 2 x 600 word reports per semester.

Mentor:

You will need to arrange a mentoring relationship.

Mentoring Exercises:

A total of 4 x 150 word exercises will be set by the mentor (with guidelines from the PTC). The exercises will be provided to you by your mentor as a response to mentoring sessions.

Offered: Every year (2010 intensive, June 21-24; September 21-23)

Semester: Second

Demand Hours: 2 cps 80 hrs
4 cps 160 hrs

Contact Hours: 36-39 hrs

Unit Co-ordinator: Peter Moore

Description: This unit deals with the management and leadership of congregations and Christian ministries, with a special emphasis on facilitating leadership in others, and upon the structure reform and management of congregations in the Presbyterian Church of Australia.

Method: Class instruction, reading and Field Education

Assessment: 2cps

Major project – prepare a leadership training course. This shall consist of: an outline for a course which would take trainees two or more evenings or half days, 500 words 10%; the content of a one hour length session within that course, 1500 words 20%; and a theological commentary on the proposed course, 1500 words 20%.

The course would prepare trainees for a leadership role within a church context (e.g. Eldership, Bible study leadership, pastoral care, Sunday worship leadership.)

435 - 4cps:

1. Major project – prepare a leadership training course. This shall consist of: an outline for a course which would take trainees two or more evenings or half days, 500 words 10%; the content of a one hour length session within that course, 1500 words 20%; and a theological commentary on the proposed course 1500 words, 20%.

2. Ministry Project with Planning and Personal evaluation of student's strengths and weakness in leadership.

In the course of a field placement, students develop and implement a ministry project. As part of this the student develops and implements a proposal by which the student's strengths and weaknesses in leadership will be evaluated. The complete process will consist of three stages:

a) Students choose a leadership project in consultation with the lecturer and their field supervisor and then prepare and submit in writing: their purpose/objectives/goals/plans/accountabilities as appropriate for the particular ministry project, and a proposed evaluation process involving the recruitment of an evaluation group, determining the criteria for evaluation, and preparing an evaluation inventory, 1000 words. 20%;

b) Subject to any conditions imposed by the lecturer and/or supervisor, the student carries out the ministry project, as well as implementing the evaluation process. The latter would normally involve assembling and briefing the evaluation team, as well as issuing and explaining the inventory, all before the ministry project is undertaken.

c) The student correlates the data obtained through the evaluation process and provides a detailed report on the student's strengths and weakness in leadership, together with personal and theological reflection. Completed inventories will be provided with the report. 2000 words, 30%.

PC489/689 The Practical Divinity: The Theology of the English Puritans (4 cps)

Offered: 2010 intensive (dates to be advised)

Semester: Second

Demand Hours: 300 hrs

Contact Hours: 26 hrs

Method: Lectures over a five day intensive Prof. Sinclair Ferguson is available in Sydney for a week. He has extensive teaching experience, including intensives. Students will be expected to complete pre-reading prior to the intensive.
 Pre-reading (approx. 500 pp.).

Lecturer: Prof. Sinclair Ferguson

Unit Co-ordinator:

- Aims:
1. To give students first hand knowledge of the writings of some of the leading figures in the Puritan movement.
 2. To provide experience in studying, analysing and applying historical texts in their own milieu.
 3. To stimulate thoughtful reflection for the contemporary church by considering the extent to which the pastoral theologians of this period correlated biblical, theological learning with application to life.

- Outcomes:
- At the end of the unit students will be able to:
1. Demonstrate an ability critically to analyse, interpret and assess historical texts by direct exposure to the texts themselves rather than secondary sources and assessments.
 2. Demonstrate a working knowledge of Puritan pastoral theology.
 3. Articulate the impact in specific common contexts of a theologically oriented mind.
 4. Better understand the importance of serious theological reflection as a framework for Christian ministry in the reformation tradition and as a model for Christian thinking in the contemporary world.
 5. Have a sufficient exposure to a variety of authors to undergird further study either on a specific theologian of the period, or of specific themes germane to the period.

Content:

The unit will outline the character of Puritan pastoral theology as practised in a variety of contexts (personal conversation, catechetical instruction, meetings designed to apply Scripture and theology to the issues of life, and most particularly in regular preaching).

For the Puritans, following William Ames' bon mot "Theology is the doctrine or teaching of living to God." This vision was shared by all the leading Puritan thinkers, preachers and writers. Even those Puritans (like John Owen) who received academic preferment were at heart seeking to encourage faithful Christian living, and often themselves served as working pastors. Consequently the published output of the Puritan period was largely developed from material that had been used in pastoral contexts. Much of their published work, therefore, drew upon either material they had produced first of all for their own spiritual growth, or from their teaching or the various other contexts in which the teaching of Scripture was expounded.

During the unit, a variety of themes will be explored with reference to specific Puritan writers whose works will be read and discussed with a view to analysing the ways in which theology influences pastoral thinking and practice.

The following themes will be examined with respect to the specific texts listed:

The Puritan View of the Ministry

Text: Richard Baxter: The Reformed Pastor

The Puritan Understanding of Preaching

Text: William Perkins: The Art of Prophesying

Becoming a Christian

Text: Joseph Alleine: A Sure Guide To Heaven
